ARTS WORKSHOPS

Taught by professional artists and experienced teaching artists, we explore a diversity of mediums such as acrylic, textiles, ink, clay and watercolor. Past projects have included batik dye, tie-dye, pillow making, weaving, mixed-media, Suminagashi water ink prints, collagraph and linoleum carving printmaking.

CREATIVE WRITING

We explore poetry and a variety of creative writing approaches, seeking to show students how they can find inspiration in their experiences, nature, community and gratitude for the mundane. We've found that facilitating writing in a non-academic, relaxed setting often leads to a deeper love of writing for our students.

ACTIVISM

URBAN GARDENING + COOKING

We introduce students to several key social justice issues affecting the local community, and engage them in hands-on activism projects with local businesses and organizations. The curriculum is centered around empowering young people to be change-makers in their communities and learn to be kind community members.

During July and August, our students are the primary caretakers of the Fifth Street Farm located on the Earth School's rooftop. Students learn how to maintain an urban garden and harvest produce from the earth. We often use fresh veggies and herbs that we harvest in our cooking and baking workshops.

MINDFULNESS

Our program introduces students to simple breathing, stretching, and moving to help young people stay grounded and in the present moment. Our instructors are experienced in offering these practices in ways that are fun and accessible to kids!

A SAFE PLACE TO EXPLORE AND GROW

At Sixth Street Community Center, we pride our student programs on quality enrichment based workshops that offer students an encouraging environment to discover their expressive selves.

We are continually striving for progressive and innovative ways to maintain our strong sense of community, culture and diversity.

We seek to provide working and growing families with a nurturing space, where their child can feel comfort away from home. We enjoy deepening our relationships with our families, often serving children from elementary school to their transitions into high school. It is common that former students will return to Summer at Sixth Street to volunteer, or gain experience as a junior counselor.
